You can dine in a real covered bridge! In 1977 the Covered Bridge Pizza Parlor in Andover, Ohio, opened its doors. At the Andover and North Kingsville locations, the restaurants are actually a piece of history. These unique eateries are actually restored pieces of an original covered bridge known as the Foreman Road Bridge, named for its location in Eagleville, Ohio. Built in 1862, its entire 126 feet and 55 tons were constructed of local lumber. Photo Credit: Walt Poff
